This map shows sites of potential community projects. We have taken several different sources of information about vacant publicly owned land, chosen the most accurate information from each and shared them here. This is our commons. We also add few private lots whose owners have volunteered their land for community use.

- public vacant lots
- public vacant sites being organized around (114)
- public vacant sites where groups have access (16)
- private vacant sites (1)
- private vacant sites being used by community (3)
- community gardens on public land
- gutterspaces

Nick has been working on a proposal to create a youth soccer program in this lot. He's created a flyer to pass out soon about a first meeting, and will be connecting with the community board to see how they help. Also, the Dept of Health and Human Services reached out to Nick to possibly team up about looping schools into this plan.

Once there's lots of community support on board 596 Acres can help Nick connect with HPD to see if they can accommodate it.

I called about this lot 3 years ago and HPD said they were putting a building here. 3 years later where is the building? This would make a great garden or movie theater (outdoor) ± agree

Streetview is below the map when a lot is selected.

This map shows sites of potential community projects. We have taken several different sources of information about vacant publicly owned land, chosen the most accurate information from each and shared them here. This is our commons. We also add few private lots whose owners have volunteered their land for community use.

- public vacant lots
- public vacant sites being organized around (114)
- public vacant sites where groups have access (16)
- private vacant sites (1)
- private vacant sites being used by community (3)
- community gardens on public land
- gutterspaces

NYC's MapPLUTO is free!

Posted on July 25, 2013 by Steven Romalewski

Download away! <http://www.nyc.gov/html/dcp/html/bytes/applbyte.shtml>

This essential corpus of public data is now (finally!) freely accessible. According to the metadata:

“ Access Constraints: MapPLUTO is freely available to all New York City agencies and the public.

Thanks to:

- Jessie Braden at Pratt Institute for pointing it out,
- 596 Acres for pressing the FOIL case with the city (and a similar effort from Muck Rock),
- The New York World for highlighting the irony of charging fees and licenses for this data,
- the NYC Transparency Working Group for pressing the city on all things opendata,
- anyone and everyone in city government who pressed for this change from the inside, and
- thanks to everyone else who helped shine a light on this ongoing failure of the city's open data efforts — that has now been turned around!

Farming Concrete

TOOLKITMILLBARNCONTACTDONATEHISTORYFAQ

The Farming Concrete Toolkit is a way to help measure all of the good things growing in your farm, garden, or yard, from hot peppers to happiness. Urban farmers and gardeners contribute every day to the social and environmental health of their communities. The Toolkit helps you track your output to showcase the benefits of your farm or garden, to improve and share your practice, and to raise awareness of your impact to funders and policymakers.

The Toolkit was created by and for urban farmers and gardeners in collaboration with Design Trust for Public Space and Farming Concrete. This website is the newest component of a multi-year project documenting the impact of urban farming and gardening. To learn more about our past work, visit the History section.

Ready to get started? Download the Farming Concrete Data Collection Toolkit.

To enter your garden or farm's data, create an account in to Barn.

To download data on the impact of urban farming and gardening, visit the Mill.

Want to learn more about using the toolkit? Watch our instructional videos.
